

Planning and archaeology

Session one

A CPD workshop hosted by IfA Scottish Group

WHEN	Wednesday 15 October 11am – 4pm Teas and coffees, and lunch provided
WHERE	Boardroom, MacDonald Rooms Conference Centre 95 MacDonald Road, Edinburgh, EH7 4NS
COSTS	£20 for IfA members, non-members £35 (including lunch)
BOOK	www.archaeologists.net/CPD/SGIfA-Planning

This first session aims to outline the legislative and regulatory context of the planning system, to discuss the basic principles which underpin the planning system and to illustrate the main areas where archaeology and planning meet. Delegates should come away with an improved understanding of the wider context of planning and archaeology, the difference between legislation, policy and guidance, and current developments in planning.

The tutor, Tim Howard, is IfA's Policy Advisor. Tim practiced law for many years prior to joining IfA and is thus uniquely placed to understand and explain how the many layers of legislation, policy and guidance have developed over time to produce our current planning system.

A follow-up Session 2 is planned, to be held in collaboration with ALGAO: Scotland to cover the practical detail of how archaeological conditions can be applied to planning applications, and will cover issues relating to project design, monitoring and enforcement from fieldwork to post-excavation.

- 11.00 Tea & coffee on arrival
- 11.15 Primary & secondary legislation; the role of planning policy and guidance
- 12.30 Basic principles of the plan-based system
- 13.30 Lunch (provided)
- 14.00 Marine spatial planning – an introduction
- 14.40 Environmental Impact Assessment, Strategic Environmental Assessment and international obligation
- 15.30 Other issues and Q&A
- 16.00 Close

To find out more please contact Lianne at lianne.birney@archaeologists.net